What this means

Moving forward, when you submit for an architectural changes form, exterior paint, stain and siding must be from the approved palette.

What this DOESN'T mean

Anyone with colors on their home that have been removed from our updated list of colors are NOT in violation. This is meant to be a gradual phasing out of the colors that are no longer up to date, while incorporating some of today's trends.

Our Process

Our board met with an interior designer from Sherwin Williams. Our current, expansive color palette (from the 1970's) was discussed. The overarching opinion was we had "too many" options to maintain a theme through the neighborhood. Most developments have a limited selection of colors for siding, trim and accents- so to their design team, this is still a very generous scheme with a lot of choices to keep your home looking its best!

The goal in updating our color palette was to continue to maintain the integrity of our neighborhood, all while modernizing the look. Several of these have been named "Sherwin Williams Color of the Year" over the past decade.
